This Certificate is presented to

NANE MESROPYAN

Managerial Accounting Simternship®

Completed on: August 02, 2025

This certificate signifies experience:

- Referencing cost analysis data generated by allocating manufacturing overhead using direct labor hours, you'll determine which product is generating losses and recommend a suitable course of action for next steps.
- Given the result of the cash forecast, you'll analyze a list of potential sources of cash or decisions aimed to resolve the forecasted cash decrease and determine why each option might be a downside for the company.
- In reviewing fixed and variable cost data for multiple retail store locations, you'll identify the break-even point for each location using the calculated contribution margin and sort the potential outcomes of using fixed or variable cost into a list of pros and cons.
